1. "The Nessen Swing Arm wall lamp, which was designed in 1927, is simple, elegant, and classic, with a nice knuckle hinge and a three-way switch. I've been ordering it in various finishes since 1978."

2. "Galbraith and Paul printed linens have such texture and dimension, and they're so spirited. Flower Power is reminiscent of 1960s and '70s patterns. I would use it as an exclamation point in a casual room. Pizzelle would be great on an ottoman, and Bird Silhouette is nice for pillows or curtains."

3. "I love Rowe's Celine ottoman: you can dress it up, you can dress it down. This piece proves that 'chic' and 'comfortable' are not mutually exclusive."

4. "I've used Cedric Hartman's AE side table for almost 30 years. This top is Paonazzetto marble; the tripod base is polished bronze. Its sculptural, elegant form holds its place in a room without ever taking over."

5. "I put Pendleton's striped park blankets on all-white beds in guest rooms—they give just the right pop of color."

CHRISTOPHER COLEMAN
INTERIOR DESIGNER

Glacier National Park Blanket, from $178, by Pendleton Wool Mills.

6. "Richard Schultz's 1966 collection of outdoor furniture is surprisingly comfortable. It withstands the elements, and it works in both traditional and modern settings."

RICHARD MISHAAN
INTERIOR DESIGNER

Contour Chaise Lounge, $2,85

7. "Wendell Castle's Sizzle tables mix art and function. They can be casual or formal: I've used them in a beach house and in a Park Avenue living room."

MATTHEW PATRICK SMYTH
INTERIOR DESIGNER

2 Pod Sizzle Table, to the trade.
