

DESIGN AND ARCHITECTURE

5 design things to this week: Sept 23 - 29

Written by Karen Bruckner • Sep. 23, 2019

Selected student thesis projects are on display at SCI-Arc

This week: explore the charged relationship between Los Angeles and Nature; understand your brain on color; learn how to design for the good life; celebrate 20 years of SASSAS at Schindler House; and check out the visions of tomorrow's architects.

3) PRACTICAL MAGIC: Elevating Our Lives with Design

Paul Fortune has brought to a career in interior design an innate sense of how to create a comfortable environment (no spotlights, no cold whites or primary colors, and table cloths a must). He also has a delicious acerbic wit, and both talents are on display on his new book, "Notes On Decor, etc." He will sign books and participate in a conversation about "curating the good life" with Interiors Editor-in-Chief Erika Heet and designers Natasha Baradaran and Thomas Lavin--at the Pacific Design Center this Thursday. It's all part of Fall Market 2019 at the PDC. Catch Fortune on this DnA.

When: Thursday, Sept 26, 3 pm

Where: Pacific Design Center, 8687 Melrose Ave, West Hollywood 90069; Panel takes place on the 5th Floor Atrium, Paul Fortune book-signing follows at Thomas Lavin's showroom, Suite B310

Tickets: Free, however RSVP required. You can RSVP here.
